

CIO SECRETARY TREASURER
238 Manuscript Boxes

Processed: 1966-67
By: LHH

Accession Number 185

The files of the Secretary-Treasurer office of the CIO were deposited with the Archives of Labor History and Urban Affairs in April 1966 by Walter Reuther.

For convenience the files have been divided into two parts. I - Files of James Carey and II - Files of George L.P. Weaver, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer.

The entire collection covers the period from 1935-1960.

James B. Carey was born on August 12, 1911 at Philadelphia. He received his education at St. Theresa's parochial School, and at the public high school of Glassboro, New Jersey. He later took training at the Drexel Institute and at the University of Pennsylvania in engineering, in management of industrial enterprise, and in financial and business forecasting.

His first full-time position was with the Philco radio laboratory in Philadelphia. When, on July 15, 1933, Philco signed its first union contract, Carey was elected president of the newly founded American Federation of Radio Workers which was chartered by the AFL as Federal Union 18368. In December 1933, at the first convention of local unions in the radio and electrical industry, he was elected national president, and he headed a delegation which appeared before the AFL Executive Council to request a national charter. The AFL refused to grant this request. Two and one-half years later, after prolonged and fruitless negotiations, the representatives of the radio workers established a new national union, the United Electrical and Radio Workers, they elected Carey President, and they voted to affiliate with the CIO.

Charles P. Howard died in 1938, and was replaced by Carey as elected Secretary-Treasurer of the CIO at the 1938 Convention, a position which he held until the merger with the AFL in 1956. When the CIO Civil Rights Committee was established in 1942, he was appointed Chairman. In 1953, he was named secretary-treasurer of the Philip Murray Memorial Foundation.

Soon after his appointment as Secretary-Treasurer, Carey became inter-ested in foreign affairs. In 1939 he was a CIO delegate to the Second Labor Conference of the American States. After World War II, he frequently represented the CIO at international conferences. He was an associate consultant at the founding United Nations Conference for International Organization held from April to June, 1945. He was secretary of the CIO delegation to the London Conference which was called in 1945 under the auspices of the British Trade Union Conference to establish the World Federation of Trade Unions. After the CIO withdrew from the WFTU, he participated in a number of conferences which resulted in the formation of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, and he was named the first substitute member from North America on the ICFTU Executive Board. In addition, Carey participated in the administration of the European Recovery Program, 1948-53 as a labor consultant on the Public Advisory Board of the Economic Co-operation Administration.

Besides his participation in foreign affairs, he held a number of advisory positions with the U.S. government. In 1941 President Roosevelt appointed him to the Production Planning Board of the Office of Production Management, to the National Defense Mediation Board, and to the National War Labor Board. In 1947, President Truman appointed him to the President's Committee on Foreign Aid, and to the President's Committee on Labor Management.

Carey also represented the CIO on the executive boards of a number of private organizations, including American Association for the United Nations; Americans for Democratic Action; Food for Freedom Incorporated; International Training Administration; National Committee for a Free Europe; National Conference of Christians and Jews; National Planning Association; Harry S. Truman Library; Union for Democratic Action; United World Federalists; and Workers Defense League.

Series 8 - CIO Conventions and AFL-CIO Unity Material

Boxes 89-103

The records in this series cover the period from 1937 to 1955. Besides the usual convention material, this series contains correspondence, reports and resolutions pertaining to AFL-CIO Unity Conferences of 1937 to 1942, and also the correspondence pertaining to CIO Executive Board meetings of 1939 to 1940.

The Convention material is arranged chronologically by year of convention, and it pertains to the CIO conventions of 1938 to 1940 and 1948 to 1954 as well as to the AFL-CIO Convention of 1955. The records of the 1943, 1944, 1945, 1946, and 1947 conventions are missing, although the published proceedings and resolutions of the 1943 and 1944 are in the collection. There was no convention in 1945. The records consist of correspondence, reports and resolutions, press releases, newspaper clippings and published material. At the end of this series, there are four scrapbooks of photographs, and two scrapbooks of newspaper clippings.

Series 9 - Regional Offices and Industrial Union
Councils

Boxes 104-108

Correspondence, reports, resolutions, and newspaper clippings.

In order to unite and coordinate all the CIO organizations within each city, county and state, Regional Offices and Industrial Union Councils were established. They were governed by rules and regulations formulated by the Executive Board and were under the supervision of the Executive Vice-President. Prior to 1953, most states maintained one regional office. In 1953, there was a re-organization, and the regional offices were limited to thirteen. Each regional office covered the territory of two or more states. There were 41 state and 247 city and county industrial union councils.

The records in this series cover the period from 1937 to 1955. They are divided into three sections - Regional Offices, State Industrial Union Councils, City and County Industrial Union Councils. The records of section one are divided into two parts - Regional Offices, 1937-1953, which are arranged alphabetically, and Regional Offices, 1953-55 which are arranged numerically, I-XII. There are no records for Region XIII. The records of section two are arranged alphabetically. The records of section three are divided into two sections - City and County. The records are arranged alphabetically within each section.

Series 11: International Affairs Department

Boxes 115-134. The records in this series cover the period from 1939 to 1955. The series is divided into seven sections. (1) World Federation of Trade Unions (2) International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (3) Economic Cooperation Administration and the European Recovery Program (4) Mutual Security Administration and the European Recovery Program (5) Labor Committee of the Foreign Operations Administration (6) Office File (7) Published Material.

The records of Section 1 cover the period from 1943 to 1949. They consist of correspondence, reports, minutes of meetings, press releases, newspaper clippings and published material. They pertain to the meetings of the World Federation of Trade Unions, to the W.F.T.U. and the European Recovery Program and to the withdrawal of the CIO from the W.F.T.U.

The records of Section 2 cover the period from 1949 to 1955. They consist of correspondence, reports, press releases, newspaper clippings, and published material. They pertain to the activity of the CIO at the European and Latin American meetings of the I.C.F.T.U.

The records of Section 3 pertain to the activity of the CIO in the administration of the European Recovery Program. According to the Economic Co-operation Act of 1948, the ERP was administered by the Economic Co-operation Administration. As part of the administration, a Public Advisory Board was created. This Board consisted of U.S. citizens who consulted with, and advised the administrator with respect to general or basic policy matters of the ERP. James Carey was a member of the Public Advisory Board. The CIO also participated in the administration of the ERP through the Labor Division of the ECA which was established by the administrator. The staff of the Labor Division consisted of labor union officers or members who were chosen for short periods to perform special duties for the Administrator. The records in this section cover the period from 1947 to 1951. They consist of correspondence, reports, minutes, press releases, and published material.

The records of Section 4 are a continuation of the records in section three. In 1951 the Administration of the ERP was put under the Mutual Security Administration, and the emphasis of the European Recovery Program was upon building up the military strength of the NATO countries, rather than providing them with assistance. The records of this section cover the period from 1951 to 1953. They consist of correspondence, reports, minutes, press releases, and published material. The reports and minutes of the Public Advisory Board continue through January 1953.

The records of Section 5 are a continuation of the records in Section four. The Foreign Operations Administration was created on August 1, 1953 as a result of President Eisenhower's Reorganization Plan No. 7. Four agencies including the Mutual Security Administration were combined under the Foreign Operations Administration. The Labor Committee was comprised of U.S. labor leaders appointed by the Director to advise and to consult with him concerning the programs and policies of the Foreign Operations Committee. The records of this section cover the period from 1953-1955. They consist of reports, memoranda and published material.

Section 6 contains records called "office file", a group of records pertaining to miscellaneous topics of the International Affairs Department which are arranged alphabetically. Besides the correspondence, there are records pertaining to European and Latin American Trips of CIO officials and newspaper clippings pertaining to miscellaneous topics. The records of this section cover the period from 1939 to 1955.

Section 7 contains published material pertaining to international affairs. Much of this material consists of small books and pamphlets pertaining to various subjects. The material is placed in folders and is arranged alphabetically.

Part II: Files of George L-P Weaver

The records of this chapter are concerned with the career of George Leon Paul Weaver, who was the Assistant Secretary-Treasurer of the CIO. Most of the records described pertain to the CIO, but some relate to other aspects of the career of Weaver.

In 1940, Weaver joined the United Transportation Service Employees Union and was elected a member of the grievance committee of Chicago Local 1000. In 1943, he was appointed the International Representative for the Washington, D.C. area, and in 1944 he was appointed Assistant to the President. Weaver's duties included processing grievance cases, servicing local unions, and presiding over elections and hearings. He continued to work for the UTSE until 1950, even though he had been appointed to positions with the national CIO.

In 1942, the CIO Executive Board established the Civil Rights Committee and appointed Weaver as its Director. As Director, much of his work involved assisting the national Secretary-Treasurer, and in 1945 he was officially appointed Assistant Secretary-Treasurer. He held these positions simultaneously until 1950. The duties consisted of preparing testimony and testifying before Congressional committees, of representing the Secretary-Treasurer before federal agencies, and of delivering speeches on behalf of the CIO. In addition, he fulfilled field assignments for the CIO unions. This work involved participating in contract negotiations and in processing grievance cases.

On October 24, 1950, Weaver was granted a two year leave of absence to serve as Assistant to the Chairman of the U.S. National Security Resources Board, which had been established by the National Security Act of 1947. This Board is composed of a chairman and of other members who are directors of government executive departments. In 1950, Stuart Symington was Chairman. The major function of the Board is to advise the President of the United States concerning the coordination of military, industrial, and civilian mobilization in the event of a war and to suggest policies concerning the utilization of manpower and resources. As Assistant to the Chairman, Weaver performed a variety of tasks, but he worked mainly in the area of manpower mobilization, especially as it concerned the Negro and organized labor.

In April, 1951, President Truman appointed Symington chairman of a committee to make recommendations for the reorganization of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Weaver was appointed a member of this committee and on June 15, Symington appointed him as the senior RFC member of a mixed RFC and State Department committee to determine the cost factor incident to the production of tin in Bolivia. To perform this mission, the committee made two trips to Bolivia. In October, Weaver represented the RFC on a similar tin mission to Malaya, Indonesia, and Thailand. He was also one of the representatives of the United States on the committee that negotiated tin agreements with Great Britain, Indonesia, Thailand, Bolivia, and Belgium.

From April, 1952 until August, Weaver worked on the Senatorial campaign staff of Stuart Symington. In August he returned to the National Security Resources Board as a consultant to work on a project for increasing the transportation system in South America.

This assignment was completed in December, and in January, 1953, he returned to the CIO as Assistant Secretary-Treasurer. Weaver stayed with the CIO until the merger in 1955. According to the merger agreement, the original staff members of the AFL and of the CIO were retained until a special committee made an equitable provision for the integration of the two staffs. Accordingly, he worked for the AFL-CIO until February, 1958.

In April, 1958, Weaver accepted a position with the International Union of Electrical Workers. He was Director of the Committee of Political Education. Between June, 1959 and November, while still employed by the IUE, he was a United States delegate at three international conferences - the Atlantic Conference, the World Federation of United Nations Association, and the NATO Parliamentarians Conference. The Atlantic Conference and the NATO Parliamentarians Conference were sponsored by the countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and were called to discuss the problems of NATO. The conference of the World Federation of the United Nations was one of a series of annual conferences. At this conference, there were several sessions pertaining to the International Labor Organization.

When Weaver returned from these conferences, he worked on the 1960 presidential nomination committee for Stuart Symington.

Sub-Series 15A - Non CIO Organizations and Individuals 1941-52

Boxes 147-154

Correspondence, press releases, minutes, reports, and published material. The records are arranged alphabetically.

As assistant to James Carey, Weaver answered some of the correspondence which Carey received as a member of the board of directors of various organizations. Most of this correspondence pertains to requests for contributions, to invitations to be on lecture panels, and to other routine business. Some reports, minutes, press releases, and published material are interspersed with the correspondence. Most of the organizations described in this sub-series are concerned with civil rights.

Sub-Series 16D - National Civil Rights Program

Boxes 202-212

Correspondence, reports, press releases, Congressional testimony, speeches, and drafts of articles.

One of the responsibilities of the Civil Rights Committee was to focus attention on the achievements of the United States in protecting its heritage of civil liberties and in pointing out its shortcomings and mistakes. The Civil Rights Committee became the spokesman of the CIO in promoting the principle of racial equality. The records of this series pertain to the political lobbying activities of the Civil Rights Committee in its attempt to establish a national civil rights program. Some of the lobbying was directed at national non-government organizations and at state, city, and local governments, but most of the lobbying was concentrated at the federal government.

The records of this sub-series are arranged alphabetically. Within this arrangement, there are two categories - Civil Rights Cases and federal and state governments lobbying.

This addition to the CIO Secretary-Treasurer Collection contains papers from the offices of James Carey. The vast majority of the material was created by Mr. Carey in his position as CIO Secretary-Treasurer, although there is a small portion which relate more specifically to his role in the IUE. The bulk of this part of the collection contains speeches given by Mr. Carey in the early 1950s; minutes from CIO and AFL-CIO International Executive Board meetings; unofficial minutes and notes from CIO Vice-President's meetings; materials relating to CIO anti-communism; and other various materials relating to his duties as CIO Secretary-Treasurer.

Important subjects:

- Anti-Communism
- Expulsion of left-led unions from CIO, 1949-1950
- Formation of CIO, 1935-36
- House Un-American Activities Hearings
- Victor Alter and Henryk Erlich

Non-manuscript material:

CIO Convention Proceedings and serials have been transferred to the Archives Library. In addition, a small assortment of photographs and one large scrapbook has been placed in the Audio-Visual Collection.
