Abstract

The Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO) went through a period of change and growth during the tenure of George T. Guernsey as Associate Director of Education from 1945–1955. Two important events took place when the Taft-Harley Act was enacted in 1947 and the CIO merged with the American Federation of Labor in 1955 to form the AFL-CIO. Material in Part 3 of the Department of Education and Research Records reflect its efforts during this seminal period and beyond, to not only educate, inform, and inspire CIO members, but to act as an advocate for education in the American political arena.

The bulk of the records in Part 3 provides information on CIO summer schools and regional and international education conferences which served to educate CIO members on issues of labor, leadership, worker education, political action, segregation, civil rights, and public school education. Mailings to all CIO Education Directors, documentation of CIO members' participation in Scandinavian Labor Education Workshops from 1952-1955, and information regarding issues at the 1955 White House Conference on Education are included.
