Language of the Material:	Material entirely in English.
Abstract:	Called the Fair Practices and Anti-Discrimination Department until 1983, the UAW's Civil Rights Department oversees the union's diversity and anti-prejudice initiatives. According to the union's website, the "Civil Rights Department works closely with the UAW's Local Union Civil Rights Committees to educate, mobilize, and assist" the union's members in matters related to discrimination and sexual harassment. The department also campaigns actively in support of voter registration and turnout efforts in various communities. The UAW Civil Rights Department Records consist of documents of the union's investigations into claims of discrimination by their members, correspondence, educational videos, conference materials, and diversity training materials.

Immediate Source of Acquisition

Records most likely deposited by the UAW's Civil Rights Department.

Processing Information

Processed and finding aid written by Gavin Strassel, Walter P. Reuther Library, on August 12, 2019.

Conditions Governing Access

Collection is open for research.

Conditions Governing Use

Researchers using boxes 1-8 must sign a restricted use form, cannot duplicate (taking images or photocopying) its records, and cannot cite any identifying information outside of names of international union staff. The departmental records in boxes 1-8 contain materials documenting the international union's investigations into charges of discrimination by members against employers, fellow members, and the union itself. The restrictions are due to the sensitive nature of these records, though they are still accessible to researchers. Any questions about restrictions can be directed to the Library's UAW Archivist or Reference Archivist.
