History

In 1966, AFSCME established the Legislation and Community Affairs department, which would undergo a series of changes over the next few decades. First, it became the Legislation and Political Education department. Education then became a separate department alongside the Legislation and Political Action department. Political Action then became a separate department while Legislation eventually became known as Federal Government Affairs. AFSCME's PAC, PEOPLE (Public Employees Organized to Promote Legislative Equality), originally established as its own department, eventually came under Political Action.

The Political Action department monitors political campaigns and ballot measures at the national, state, and local levels, and works to mobilize voters on issues related to public employees.
