Language of the Material:	Material entirely in English.
Abstract:	In 1925, the Jewish Woman's Club of Detroit affiliated with the National Council of Jewish Women (NCJW, established in 1893) and became the National Council of Jewish Women: Detroit Section (now Greater Detroit Section). The group's philanthropic mission remained to "promote kindness and helpfulness in general and to elevate the mental, moral and social status of young Jewish women in particular." Over many decades NCJW-GDS has implemented many programs for child and family welfare. The NCJW: GDS records document the activities of the organization from its inception, including administrative affairs and programming, and the role of the organization in the Detroit community.

History

In 1891, the Jewish Woman's Club of Temple Beth El in Detroit was formed to "promote kindness and helpfulness in general and to elevate the mental, moral and social status of young Jewish women in particular." In 1896 the group changed its name to the Jewish Woman's Club (JWC) of Detroit. Innovative philanthropic projects were a focal point for the group. Examples of such projects included free libraries that traveled to local factories for the workers and support for the Russian Relief Fund (1905). In 1903, a scholarship fund for Jewish girls was established, and in 1911 the Penny Lunch Project was initiated for children at several schools in poor areas of Detroit.

In 1919, the JWC was incorporated and opened a residence for employed Jewish women at 89 Rowena Street in Detroit; this house was reorganized in 1921 as the Young Women's Hebrew Association (YWHA). In 1925, the JWC affiliated with the National Council of Jewish Women (NCJW, established in 1893) and became the National Council of Jewish Women, Detroit Section (now Greater Detroit Section). Despite the name change, the group's philanthropic mission remained the same. The Big Sister Program began in 1933, and the Orchards Children's Services was established in the late 1950s with services for at-risk children; it now includes adoption services, foster parent training, and services to high-risk families. Other NCJW-GDS projects include Kosher Meals on Wheels, financial assistance for education, temporary housing for women and children in domestic abuse situations (Safe Place), SPACE for Changing Families Support Groups, and advocacy regarding issues such as gun violence protection, sex trafficking and reproductive justice. Parts 1 and 2 of this collection were originally gathered and organized by Dorothy Kaufman, a long-time NCJW member, who died in 2012.
