History

Robert (Bob) Benyas was born in Omaha, Nebraska, in 1923. His family soon moved to Detroit where he grew up and spent his entire adult life and career. He attended Wayne University for one year before being drafted into the U.S. Army during World War II. Benyas served in the Army Air Corps in the Pacific Theater, processing film documentation of bombing runs. After the war, he continued his education at the Institute of Design in Chicago and then returned to Detroit to have a prominent career as a photographer until his death in 2014. In 1951, Benyas established the Benyas-Kaufman Photography Studio in Detroit with his colleague Jack Kaufman. He often worked as a free-lancer for the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press. During his career, he documented many important local events and people from around the world, including presidents and politicians, musicians and entertainers. Benyas was often the official photographer for events in the Jewish community of metropolitan Detroit and as such documented much of the history of that community in the second half of the 20th century.
