Dedication

In view of his forthcoming retirement and in recognition of his long service to the University, this issue of the Wayne Advocate is dedicated to Professor Norbert D. West. Every law student who has graduated from this Law School in the last fifteen years has known Professor West well and shares with us the realization that Professor West's retirement will result in a diminution of the vitality of our Law School.

Professor West's contribution to the education of lawyers has been important. He has helped many seniors to acquire that basic skill in expression, in draftsmanship and in legal writing which is fundamental to the practice of law as for any other aspect of professional, legal activity. In addition, he has helped law students learn fundamental aspects of various phases of the law and has brought to his teaching the enormously valuable background he acquired from his Viennese training as a lawyer.

His talents in comparative law are much in demand now, and he has considerably enriched the Law School's intellectual offerings by providing a course in Comparative Law. In these days when so much of interest and importance concerns foreign legal developments, we have learned more than ever the value of Professor West's association with us. Although we recognize he well deserves the increased opportunities for both increased leisure and varied professional activities which the semi-retirement into which he will now move can offer, we are loathe to think that we shall not be able to drop into the library for a few minutes chat on any one of innumerable legal problems and benefit from the advice and experience of Professor West.

Professor West moves now only to semi-retirement for he intends to continue his academic pursuits by teaching abroad, as well as enjoying some leisure here at home. On this occasion, we all join in wishing Professor West full success in his future plans.

The Dean's Report

LAW DAY AND ALUMNI HOMECOMING

Early as it may seem, we are now preparing for our annual Law Day and our annual Alumni Homecoming Day to be held on Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5, 1962. The幸福 Memorial Lecture this year is Robert Allen Lattimer, distinguished Professor of Law at the University of Arkansas, in which we will deliver the principal address on Law Day. Addressing the University at Small College and will stay over for the Alumni Homecoming luncheon.

Professor Leflar is a man of many accomplishments; just a few of his activities are given here. He was Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Arkansas, 1949-61, Arkansas Chairman on Uniform State Laws since 1949. He is a Member of the Board of Directors of the American Judicature Society, and former Dean of the University of Arkansas School of Law. He is, currently, and has been for some time, Director of the Appellate Judges Seminars held at the New York University during the summer months. We are indeed proud and pleased that he will be with us on these two significant occasions.

The Law School Alumni Association Board of Governors has recommended that the Alumni Day program be held in accordance with this recommendation, an afternoon panel discussion has been scheduled. A general description of the program is enclosed with this issue of the Wayne Advocate. Detailed information will be sent to you after the first of the year. All of us at the Law School are looking forward to another successful and pleasant reunion on Alumni Day —plan to come—Saturday, May 5.

LAW SCHOOL

This year we had an increased number of applications for admission to the School. In fact, we had to establish a "waiting list" in June, but we were able to accommodate all of the people who wished to enter. This means that we are somewhat crowded for space since we had a 1961 class (the school freshman class—more than 3% of a strain on our facilities!

Next year the University will be on the quarter system and for the Law School we are now holding a series of faculty discussions relating to ways and means of making the change.

One of the people who is working on the committee is our friend, Professor Babcock. The first of his activities is given here. He was Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Arkansas. He is now a Member of the Board of Directors of the American Judicature Society, and former Dean of the University of Arkansas School of Law. He is, currently, and has been for some time, Director of the Appellate Judges Seminars held at New York University during the summer months. We are indeed proud and pleased that he will be with us on these two significant occasions.

Here we will examine one of these basic principles and judicial pronounce­ ments. First, however, it should be clear that the rules of evidence are not based solely on the general ac­ ceptances and conventions of the system or ideology. Instead, the works have had a firm foundation in the development of the rules. The need for these rules is clear and the fairness of the presentation.

Discriminatory barriers in housing are the prime remnant of prejudice.

Because of the growth of the Negro population, wartime discrimination in housing has been far easier than acceptance of the Negro as an equal in the neighborhoods and the home. Employment and education are other cases in which the Negro is confronted with the "current operating performance" school of thought.

The courts have given little consideration to the development of the doctrine of appreciation of assets, although many of the statutes referring to appreciation have been in existence for many years. However, the courts, in determining a period when prices were relatively high, are considering depreciation in a dissentionary opinion in United Railways & Electric Company of Baltimore v. Dr. Shuman Returns From Europe

Dr. Samuel Shuman

As a result of a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation and some personal means, I was able to attend the International Academy of Legal Philosophy, which is held there every year. This Academy is held in Europe, where I spent fifteen months in Europe. What follows is an informal account of what I was doing there and why.

After arrival in Bremen aboard a German oceanliner which had invited me to travel there, I was able to spend almost three full weeks of March, and I was able to spend almost three full weeks in Berlin, where I picked up an automobile, arrangements for the purpose of international conferences. After leaving Florence, I returned to Germany to take up my main activity which was the research mentioned in the opening paragraph of this article.

In Freiburg, I was accorded the highest cordiality by the members of the University in the law department and provided with access to all the library facilities needed. I was given an invitation to attend classes if I so desired. I was able to give three lectures there, as it should have been, and consequently a great deal of time was spent in Freiburg. Freiburg also received many American experiences, as you might imagine, since I would try to learn German in any way possible, including talking to strangers at restaurants. Fortunately, in the custom the town is to sit at a table if there is an open air and people are waiting, you simply ask if the space is free and sit down. In this way, I met many interesting people. The interest in foreigners is still strong in Germany, even more so than in Italy.

The language problem was something of a difficulty, but I was able to overcome it. Even after leaving Germany, I was able to speak English fluently. It is a small French town just north of the Spanish border which had invited me to travel there. I was impressed to learn of the developments which had prevailed prior to the Second World War. There were no restrictions on the development of legal philosophy and legal philosophical thinking in German law which is held there every year. ancient buildings which have been ruined after the heavy bombing.

May I conclude with an anecdotal side issue. While traveling in Europe, despite warnings from everyone, I almost never made an advance hotel reservation. Indeed, only twice did I do so, and yet never did I have any difficulty finding a room even during the height of the tourist season at tourist centers. This was due, perhaps, to the fact that I had an automobile and could look around for a suitable place. But even more so, it was probably due to my willingness to accept accommodations at places other than where American tourists usually stay. The only difficulty I had in all my travels was when I returned to Detroit, and I returned the day before my home was to be ready for our occupancy. We were unable to find a motel room anywhere in the city and finally ended up outside of Detroit on Gratiot Avenue past Eight Mile Road.

muntion, Government programs, such as FHA and urban renewal, continue to encourage segregation. Segregation results in overcrowding and substandard housing which perpetuates the very obsolescence and decay which urban renewal is designed to correct."

"Those glories lead to segregation in other areas of life," Strickland said. "Many of our schools are segregated by the racial patterns of residence. Needless to say, this is deprivation of a particularly vital kind.

"An orderly transition in our community is essential. There is no panic here. Our group was organized to prevent this problem from arising. Call it a pilot program if you like. We intend to lend support and assistance to other groups and agencies engaged in the betterment of communities whenever and wherever possible."

New Librarian

The "1961 Annual Survey of Michigan Law," the fourth published by the WAYNE LAW REVIEW, will contain complete coverage of the significant changes, trends, and additions in 24 areas of Michigan law during the survey period. The Survey is invaluable to practitioners and students who wish to keep abreast of Michigan law. For example, a Survey subscriber may be surprised to learn that:

1. A declaratory judgment may be used to determine the validity of a foreign divorce or
2. that it will henceforth be necessary for a trustee in bankruptcy to prove that an inter vivos trust exists before a mortgage can be set aside.

The reader will be interested in the expert analysis by members of the Wayne State University Law School faculty and leading members of the Michigan Bar of the effect and impact of these trends and changes in Michigan law.

Response to the "Annual Survey of Michigan Law" has grown each year, and it is becoming increasingly difficult to fill late orders for back issues, as our supplies have been rapidly dwindling.

The Key to Better Proof

The practice of forensic medicine is usually the application of medical knowledge to the needs of the administration of justice. With the increasing demand for the application of scientific methods to legal problems, there is a scarcity of a disease or disorder which has not been investigated by a medical examiner or another from its usual setting in the courtroom. The medical examiner is a separate entity from the autoocusing room to some tribunal, in adjudicating these medical issues the terrors were made to bring together testimony of a well-trained, conscientious medical examiner from the courtroom. In this respect the professional qualifications of the medical examiner concern the use of blood as a means of identification; Questioned Documents, important in revealing forgeries; Criminology, including scientific crime detection and forensic techniques, tests and criteria.
