James Lindahl was born in Detroit in 1911. He served as Recording Secretary for the UAW-CIO Packard Local 190 and edited its newspaper in the 1930s and 1940s. Mr. Lindahl left the local in 1951 feeling that the labor movement no longer had a place for him. He earned a Master's degree from Wayne State University in Sociology in 1954 and later earned his living as a self-employed publisher in the Detroit area in various fields including retail, banking, and medicine.

The James Lindahl Collection contains proceedings, reports, newspaper clippings, and election information pertaining to the UAW-CIO and its Packard Local 190 from the 1930s into the early 1950s. It also contains Mr. Lindahl's graduate school papers on local union membership and participation. The collection also contains publications, including pamphlets, books, periodicals, flyers and handbills, from many organizations such as the UAW, CIO, other labor unions and organizations, and the U.S. government from the 1930s into the early 1950s.

Important subjects in the collection:

- UAW-CIO Packard Local 190
- Union political activities
- Union leadership
- Ku Klux Klan
- Union membership
- Packard Motor Car Company

CONTENTS*29 Storage Boxes

Series I:           General files, 1937-1953 (Boxes 1-6)

Series II:          Publications (Boxes 7-29)

NON-MANUSCRIPT MATERIAL

Approximately 12 union contracts and by-laws were transferred to the Archives Library.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged into two series. In Series I (Boxes 1-6), folders are simply listed by location within each box. They are not arranged, so any given subject may be dispersed throughout several boxes. The materials in Series II (Boxes 7-29), are not arranged in any order; they are maintained in the original order received.
