Accession No. 130
L.C. Number MS 66-1519

The papers of the Industrial Workers of the World (IWW) were placed in the Archives of Labor and Urban Affairs in February of 1965, by the Industrial Workers of the World. Other deposits have been made subsequently.

Over the turn of the century, the cause of labor and unionism had sustained some hard blows. High immigration, insecurity of employment and frequent economic recessions added to the problems of any believer in unionism. In January, 1905 a group of people from different areas of the country came to Chicago for a conference. Their interest was the cause of labor (viewed through a variety of political glasses) and their hope was somehow to get together, to start a successful drive for industrial unionism rather than craft unionism.

A manifesto was formulated and a convention called for June, 1905 for discussion and action on industrial unionism and better working class solidarity. At that convention, the Industrial Workers of the World was organized. The more politically-minded members dropped out after a few years, as the IWW in general wished to take no political line at all, but instead to work through industrial union organization against the capitalist system. The main beliefs of this group are epitomized in the preamble to the IWW constitution, which emphasizes that the workers and their employers have "nothing in common." They were not anarchists, but rather believed in a minimal industrial government over an industrially organized society.

The first dozen years of the IWW saw the organization grow among laborers who were the least shielded from the economic oppression of the times: miners, lumberworkers, migratory farmworkers, dockworkers, railroad gangs, textile weavers and many others. These were people to whom the IWW preamble had special appeal. Strikes at McKees Rocks, Lawrence, Paterson and elsewhere, the Wheatland Hop Riot, the Bisbee Deportation and the Centralia and Everett Massacres were all events which provided the "Wobblies" with national causes and heroes. Free speech fights, the 8-hour day struggle and a few winning strikes brought them some success.

Colorful leaders emerged, who attracted public interest: Big Bill Haywood, the crowd pleaser; the quiet Vincent St. John ("the Saint" to his friends); the skilled orators, J. T. "Red" Doran, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Joseph Ettor, James P. Thompson; the poets, Ralph Chaplin, Arturo Giovannitti; the songmakers, especially Joe Hill; and of course, the martyrs whose killings evoked much sympathy and horror — Frank Little, Wesley Everest, and the other victims of hundreds of violent incidents.

Later leaders of the IWW — speakers, poets, great organizers — were also talented and colorful. Although they worked as hard, often at greater odds, their timing in history was not so conducive to the appearance of gay insouciance and dash; rather than impressing the public as the social crusaders that they were, they seemed either annoying or dangerous.

In 1917, the strong tide of patriotism as this country joined World War I, worked against the success of union groups daring to suggest strikes or share the new profits. Especially was the IWW, with its large foreign enrollment and "anarchist" literature, subjected to fierce scrutiny and criticism. Laws on criminal syndicalism were passed and the government seized papers and records from all IWW headquarters. Most of these records were destroyed, which explains the scarcity of IWW historical papers. Those who were not already imprisoned, operated under a continual threat of charges of criminal syndicalism. Not only had leaders been jailed and records destroyed, but office equipment and funds of cash were seized and never returned.

The diminished membership hung on through the twenties, when a hopeful increase in organization was quashed by the Depression. Another period of some hope and increased membership in the forties was countered in the early fifties by an attorney general "subversive" listing and the Taft-Hartley Act.

Still, a corps of believers has carried on, with membership varying from year to year. Some of their ideas, once so radical, such as the 8-hour day, are now accepted. Even the 6-hour day is discussed. Free Speech Fights have been repeated. The Congress of Industrial Organizations has had some success with horizontal unionism. Their scorn of contracts and job security was one reason the IWW strength diminished, yet today some people see vision in those fears: pensions, insurance, installment obligations and guaranteed securities, however desirable, may indeed hobble a labor militant in his effort to move for more working class power.

Besides creating a colorful chapter in labor history, and laying a strong foundation for belief in industrial unionism, the IWW remains an example of a group which has stood up for its principles against nearly impossible odds.

Contents

180 manuscript boxes 1 newspaper box

Series I, Proceedings of the IWW, 1905-1971, Boxes 1-6:

This series is comprised of official proceedings and minutes of conventions; further proceedings will be added as long as the conventions occur. Occasionally these are supplemented by reports and extracts. The Fourth Convention (1908) was not officially recorded, but reports published in the Industrial Union Bulletin are included here. Proceedings not found here can be seen on microfilm, listed in the Appendix (5). Box 6 includes the proceedings of various conferences, 1948-1967. These are general and district membership conferences. Conferences within particular unions are filed with the papers of the unions in Series III.

Series II, The General Executive Board, 1906-1958, Boxes 7-15:

The GEB's Minute Book includes handwritten minutes from the years 1906-1911, excepting 1909, for which there are no entries. William E. Trautmann and Vincent St. John wrote most of the entries. The fragile volume has been duplicated for research use. Minutes of other years, from 1917 to 1939, are also in Box 7, as well as miscellaneous supplemental material including correspondence, lists and reports. Some information on the "Split" of 1923-24 is here. Reports of General Secretary Treasurers are also to be found in Box 7. General Executive Board Bulletins from 1929 to 1958 are in Boxes 8 to 15.

Series III, General Organization, Boxes 16-96:

Subseries A, The IWW General File, Boxes 16-27:

This is an alphabetically arranged general file of correspondence, and other material, including papers of most dates during the organization's history. Documents of the IWW — the constitution, preamble, various by-laws, manifesto, Charts, etc. — are filed here. Other material includes correspondence of foreign syndicalists, material on bequests and estates, various printed programs, papers on the "Split" and the "Emergency Program," the RILU, some IWW radio broadcasts from Detroit, material on strikes and correspondence of several well known members.

Subseries B, Bulletins and Financial Statements, 1917-1971, Boxes 28-38:

Office Bulletins and General Office Bulletins, later titled General Organization Bulletins, are in this series, as well as financial statements. In 1956, the two were combined into one publication. Boxes 36 to 38 include ledgers and daybooks, many from branches, and some unidentified.

Subseries C, The General Recruiting Union, 1926-1965, Boxes 39-42:

Papers of the General Recruiting Union include financial statements, ballots, conference and convention minutes and notes, correspondence, GRU general organizing committees' papers, the official organ, Recruit, and bulletins.

Subseries D, General Organizing Committees, 1937-1951, Box 43:

Minutes, correspondence, property lists of district groups.

Subseries E, Unions, Branches and Delegates, 1915-1972, Boxes 44-96:

The papers of various unions include minutes of conventions and conferences, correspondence, financial statements, bulletins, and other material, as listed in the folder descriptions. As the membership declined, such records were more frequently kept by a branch, rather than by the several unions in an area. Delegates' records are also included here. In many cases, their correspondence and other correspondence in this series, provide colorful and interesting detail, both retrospective and current, on IWW history. Records of most of these groups were seized and destroyed by the government between 1917 and 1922. Therefore, records of the unions before those dates are rare; a few exist in the trial evidence papers.

Series IV, Foreign Administrations, 1946-1965, Boxes 97-98:

Correspondence, minutes and miscellaneous items from four foreign administrations: Australian (1948-1964), Canadian (1947-1965), British (1946-1964), and Swedish (1946-1964). These administrations were quite independent, and the papers consist more of general correspondence than of actual internal business. The single letter of Mike Patton, with (Russian) Kemerovo Branch minutes, is filed in the General File.

Series V, Legal Problems, Trials and Defense, Boxes 99-136:

Subseries A, Raids and Plots, 1917-1919, Box 99:

List of materials seized by the U.S. government in coast-to-coast raids. Some are compiled by U.S. agents, others by IWW delegates. An unauthenticated paper purporting to be a report of County Council, Butte, Montana raid plans, 1919, is included.

Subseries B, Trials, Boxes 100-130:

1. The Joe Hill Case, Boxes 100-102:

Mostly retrospective, these papers are a reaction to an article published in 1948 by Wallace Stegner, which implied that Joe Hill was "guilty." Efforts to refute that brought forth clippings, trial transcripts, research material, rebuttal articles and much correspondence on the subject.

2. The Haywood Case (1917-1918), Boxes 103-123:

The complete transcript of the 1918 trial, U.S. vs. Haywood, et al., is enhanced by papers of preliminary hearings, appeals and some formerly missing trial evidence comprised of IWW bulletins and letters, 1913-1917. There are also "Jail Bulletins" and "Trial Bulletins" published by the IWW before and during the trial.

3. Centralia, Box 124:

Transcripts, briefs, appeals, petitions and a published song on the Centralia incident (1919) and trial. Further material on this can be found in Series X, the pamphlets and leaflets.

4. Criminal Syndicalism Cases, 1918-1927, Boxes 125-127:

This group of papers includes trial transcripts, correspondence, appeals, statements and other items on indictments for criminal syndicalism. California cases (1918-1927) are in Box 125, Kansas and Washington cases (1918-1923) in Box 126, and other states (1918-1923) in Box 127. Many of these indictments were based on IWW publications and therefore, the internal contents here include much interesting material on IWW thought as expressed through publications considered inflammatory by the various state governments.

5. Miscellaneous Legal Papers, 1912-1967, Boxes 128-130:

These three boxes contain a miscellany of papers on legal matters. They include a master's report on the Lawrence Strike, indictment records, 1918-1919, deportation hearings, inquests, Colorado Mine War cases, 1928-1929, Harlan, Kentucky mine cases, 1931-1932, and others, as listed in the folder inventory.

Subseries C, The General Defense Committee, 1918-1969, Boxes 131-134:

The GDC was concerned with legal problems and prisoners' welfare. These papers include correspondence, lists, appeals, statements and financial records, as well as a number of Defense Bulletins, 1924-1942.

Subseries D, Prisoners, 1918-1938, Box 135:

Records of convictions, reprieves, pardons, bail and bond funds, prison roll calls and some correspondence comprise the records in this box.

Subseries E, Subversive Listing, 1949-1962, Box 136:

The papers here reflect the problems of the IWW under New York's Feinberg Act of 1949 and later, after the organization was cited as "subversive" by the U.S. Attorney General on April 29, 1953. They include correspondence, memoranda, research notes, etc.

Series VI, Work Peoples' College, 1918-1963, Boxes 137-138:

Work Peoples' College near Duluth, Minnesota, has been cited as the earliest of all labor union-oriented colleges. Founded in the second decade of the twentieth century, it was partly financed by the IWW, which also sent many students there. Finnish socialists and the Finnish Industrialisti, a popular newspaper linked to the IWW, were the main forces behind the bilingual institution. The curriculum of this school was part of the evidence in the 1918 trial of Haywood, et al. Papers include correspondence, leaflets, class lecture outlines, school publications (many in the Finnish language), school plays and compositions and other items.

Series VII, Songs, Poems and Artwork, Boxes 139-144:

Little Red Song Books, sheet music and other music, including original arrangements, are included here, along with rejected lyrics and poems. Verse and poems of well known IWW poets, such as Richard Brazier, Ralph Chaplin, Covington Hall and Robert Whitaker are among these literary works. This series also includes many cartoons, including a group of original Joe Troy cartoons and a great number of stickerettes, the famous IWW "little organizers."

Series VIII, Original Manuscripts and Personal Accounts, Boxes 145-148:

Short and longer manuscripts are contained in Boxes 145 and 146. Notable here are Ben H. Williams' history, "The Saga of the One Big Union: American Labor in the Jungle," and William E. Trautmann's recently discovered manuscript, "The Power of Folded Arms and Thinking Bayonets." The manuscript of Fred Thompson's IWW History is here, and manuscripts of Dick Brazier, E.W. Latchem, A.S. Embree, James Phillips and many others. Boxes 147 and 148 are manuscript drafts and research material donated by Joyce Kornbluh, author of Rebel Voices. There are a great variety of poems and excerpted material (some unattributed) on the IWW.

Series IX, Miscellaneous Materials, Boxes 149-155:

Various published materials, articles, clippings, scrapbooks, bibliographic material, and odd copies of publications are included here.

Series X, Pamphlets and Leaflets of the IWW, and other Pamphlets, Boxes 156-180:

The pamphlet collection includes some pamphlets not published by the IWW, but left in the headquarters files. Pamphlets and leaflets are in alphabetical order, by title. Various local leaflets are included. Foreign language pamphlets, frequently translations of popular IWW pamphlets, are in Boxes 179 and 180. There is a card file with subject headings as well as the list included here. Information on pamphlets is also to be found among the legal papers (Series V).

Nearly every pamphlet published by the IWW is included here, either in original form or copied.

Oversize Material, Box 181

Series I
Proceedings of the IWW
Boxes 1-6

Box 1 Proceedings

1. Proceedings of the First Convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, Chicago, Jun 27-Jul 8, 1905
2. Proceedings of the Second Annual Convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, Chicago, Sep 17-Oct 3, 1906
- 3-7. Proceedings of the Third Annual Convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, Chicago, 1907. Reports 2, 3, 5, 6 and 8. (see also microfilm list, Appendix (5))

- 25-34. Red International of Labor Unions, 1922-1925

This group of papers includes statements, pleas, correspondence and bulletins related to the Communist organization (Profintern). Taken with the foreign syndicalists' correspondence from the same period, in this series, a view of attempts at international syndicalism and IWW internal problems in the 1920's becomes apparent. Membership reaction can be traced through other parts of the collection, the whole being very influential on the organization's future.

Subseries B, Bulletins and Financial Statements, Boxes 28-38

When the U.S. Government raided IWW halls between 1917 and 1921, most papers were seized and later burned. These were largely office records and correspondence of the IWW. This explains the scarcity of such records. In Series V of this collection, a group of rare bulletins and financial accounts used as evidence in U.S. vs. Haywood, et al. is to be found in boxes 120 and 121. One duplicate was put at the beginning of this series for the convenience of the researcher. Other financial statements are occasionally found in periodicals.

The series starts with financial statements, some mixed with Office Bulletins, but most not. Then a concurrent series of General Office Bulletins will be noted. Starting with the August, 1956 issue, the formerly separate items were combined, so that a financial report for the month previous was printed along with the General Office Bulletin. This part of the collection, therefore, includes both types of records. The name of the Bulletin was changed on September 1, 1929, from the General Office Bulletin to General Organization Bulletin.

Box 28 Financial Statements, 1917-1934

Box 100 The Joe Hill Case

Hill, famous IWW songwriter whose trial and execution roused the emotions of the whole country in 1914 and 1915, became again a cause celebre in 1948. An article by Wallace Stegner in New Republic seemed to infer that Joe was guilty. Most Wobblies, young and old, and many others raised a protest instantly, every way from pickets to rebuttal arguments. Files were searched for old legal documents and proofs of any kind.

1. "Joe Hill: The Wobblies' Troubadour," by Wallace Stegner. New Republic, January 5, 1948
2. Leaflet, Friends of Joe Hill
"Why We Are Picketing the New Republic"
3. Joe Hill - Miscellaneous Research Material
From files of the IWW Collection: typed items; Solidarity story, April 18, 1914; May 23, 1914; copy of Joe Hill letter from jail, November 29, 1914; three copies of various newspaper statements.

Box 122 Trials: U.S. vs. Haywood et al., and Arguments on Errors, and Appeal

The following volumes include much material of interest on the IWW trial. Here are printed many of the "lost" letters and papers (some only partially), which were later ordered destroyed by the government, and were lost to research. A careful study of these items will provide much information on a period of the IWW that is otherwise not well documented.

1. Assignment of Errors
(Printed copy; pages before 15 and after 1008 are missing.)
2. Haywood et al., vs. U.S. (1919)
Within one book, three volumes are included: Volume I: Statement of the case, sentences, errors, brief of argument, index to errors, exhibits, and documents. Volume II: Arguments on documentary evidence, and errors of admission, etc. Volume III: Arguments on evidence.

3. Haywood et al., vs. U.S. (1920)
Circuit Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit. Findings of appellate court. Indexed.
Opening brief. Vol. I
Appendix (p. 277-371) includes prosecution evidence on "Formation of the IWW" (p. 279), "Revolutionary and Lawless Character of the IWW" (p. 289) "Methods and Tactics of the IWW" (p. 316).
Reply Brief, Vol. II (Indexed)
Supplemental Brief, Vol. III (Indexed)
Supplemental Reply Brief, Vol. IV
Second Supplemental Brief, Vol. V
Specific index to each defendant's evidence. Appendix includes charge of Judge Pollock in U.S. vs. C.W. Anderson, et al., (Kansas trial).

Series VII
Songs, Poems, Cartoons and Stickers
Boxes 139-144

Box 139    Songs of the IWW

Very popular on the agenda of most IWW meetings, was the singing of IWW songs. These songs were frequently just lyrics written to familiar music of the day; occasionally composers such as Joe Hill (rarely) and Rudolph Liebich wrote original music as well. This series includes various editions of the Little Red Song Book, sheet music, other IWW songs, and poems used as songs. Some of the items here were submitted by members and rejected. The IWW tape collection includes IWW songs, which are very tuneful and interesting, as well. Nearly all IWW songs have a message, frequently an acerbic one. A few other songs (non-IWW) in the file are also included here. See also the list of tape recordings, Page 197.

- 1-5. Little Red Song Books
IWW Songs to Fan the Flames of Discontent
Chicago: IWW. Songs are added and subtracted in the various editions. Editions and subtitles include: 15th (1919), "On The Road, In the Jungles and in the Shops"; 20th (1924), "Songs of Life - and 'Take out the words, if so must be, But leave, oh leave the melody"; 21st (1925), "Songs of Life - from the mine, mill factory and shop"; 22nd (1926), same subtitle; 23rd (1927), "Songs of the Workers"; 25th (1933), same subtitle; 26th (1936), same subtitle; 27th (1939); 28th (1945); 29th (1956); 31st (1964); and 33rd (1970). IWW Worker's Sing-Along Book (for IU #630), 1972

- 28-32. Songs and poems from the files of the Seattle Branch, IWW

Box 140 Poems and Verse

A wide use of poetry and verse in IWW programs and publications inspired the prolific IWW poets and amateurs as well. Ralph Chaplin, Covington Hall, Dick Brazier, Robert Whitaker and many, many others, less known, often anonymous, contributed to this store. Some poems were printed on cards and sold singly, often for 10 cents (harking back to an earlier type of publication venture), proceeds usually going to a defense fund. In addition to the poems and verse found in Boxes 140 and 141, more will be found in the series comprised of material from Joyce Kornbluh, Box 148. Some poems here were non-IWW, but saved carefully by IWW members for their use and pleasure.

- Chapter 20. The Unstable American Economy
The Automotive Jam. Food for Rats and Weevils.
Reactions of our Foreign Policy. The "Menace of Automation." What About Our "Standard of Living?" How About Unemployment?
- Chapter 21. Some Possibilities of the Near Future
Some fundamentals of the "Great Change." Our Outmoded Governance. Social Engineering for the Future.
- Epilogue - "A Better World's In Birth"

- 17-19. "The Power of Folded Arms and Thinking Bayonets," by William E. Trautmann. This newly-discovered manuscript was written in 1937 or shortly thereafter.
About 40 pages long, this is a history of "social protest" in America. It touches on periods from the late 19th century up to 1937. Particularly interesting is comment and details on foreign-born laborers, McKees Rocks, sugar beet workers, the Lawrence Strike, and sit-down strikes. Individuals mentioned include Martin Irons, Samuel "Gompertz," Eugene Debs, Bill Haywood, Daniel
De Leon, Ben Williams, William Z. Foster, Adolph Germer, and John L. Lewis. Other subjects are the "first sit-down strike" (IWW, 1906); turn-of-the-century demonstrations; Jackson Brewing Company Strike (Cincinnati, 1884); Pullman Strike; United Brewery Workers; N.Y. Subway settlement, 1904; Pittsburg protest and McKees Rock details; foreign groups in Lawrence; Detroit and Oregon sugar beet workers; early Colorado farm worker agreements, and 1937 sit-down strikes.

Industrial Workers of the World Collection

Papers, 1903-1980
(Predominantly, 1950s-1970s)

11 linear feet
11 storage boxes
(Boxes 182-192)

Accession # 130
DALNET #
OCLC #

Part 2 of the Industrial Workers of the World Collection contains General Executive Board correspondence from the 1960s and 1970s and minutes, newsletters and correspondence from several branch locations and foreign administrations covering the same time period. Also included are Constitutional General Convention minutes from the 1970s, membership dues booklets, songs, cartoons, poetry, articles, legal case files, and a large assortment of English and foreign-language pamphlets and leaflets. Of particular interest are the reports of undercover private detectives posing as IWW members who investigated IWW organizing among Arizona miners in 1923.

PLEASE NOTE: Folders are computer-arranged alphabetically in this finding aid, but may actually be dispersed throughout several boxes in the collection. Note carefully the box number for each folder heading.
