The United Farm Workers Central Administration Files Collection is divided into five series. Each series represents a different aspect of the United Farm Workers Union at different points in its history from the founding of the AWOC (Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee) in 1959 to the files of the UFW, AFL-CIO in the mid-1970s.

Series I are the boycott files. Boycott activities in various states as well as the different companies which the Farm Workers boycotted, especially from 1970-1975, are detailed in this portion of the collection.

Series II are the general files. These files show both the workings of the Union as well as the myriad activities with which the Union was concerned. There are files on legislation, including bills that targeted immigration and illegal aliens; and a significant number of files on Proposition 22, proposed legislation in California that would have affected the ability of farm laborers to bargain through a union. There is also information on the health of farm workers, farm labor reports from various states, and some materials on various companies with which the UFW negotiated contracts.

Series III are the AWOC files. These files show the establishment and activities of the group that would eventually become the United Farm Workers Union. The period of time covered in these files is 1959-1962, with California as the sole region of representation.

Series IV are the UFWOC files. The UFWOC (United Farm Workers Organizing Committee) was created in 1966 when the AWOC and the NFWA (National Farm Workers Association) merged. UFWOC would become the UFW in 1972. These files are from the late 1960s and show the Union's work in California and Texas and include the files of Norman Smith and Eugene Nelson, two of the first farm labor organizers in Texas.

Series V are the Dolores Huerta files. Dolores Huerta was involved in the founding of the AWOC and has been a Vice-President of the UFW since its inception. These files are primarily her notes and other information she used from 1966-1970 when she was negotiating contracts between the Union and various grape and wine producing companies, including DiGiorgio, Perelli-Minetti, Paul Masson, Gallo, Schenley Industries, and The Novitiate of Los Gatos.
