The Papers of SEIU President William McFetridge were placed in the Archives of Labor and Urban Affairs in 1993 by SEIU and were opened for research in March of 1997.

A nephew of William F. Quesse, SEIU's founder and first International President, William McFetridge began his career with SEIU in 1923 as a member of Chicago's Flat Janitors Local 1. In 1927 he assumed the position of SEIU Third Vice President and then ascended to the position of SEIU 1st Vice President in 1930, a position he maintained until April of 1940, when he became President of the International. He succeeded George Scalise, whose fall from power resulted from improper union activities and a conviction on embezzlement and forgery charges.

Responding to the state of disorganization that existed in the union under Scalise, McFetridge began a program of modernizing the union's financial and record-keeping procedures, thereby inhibiting others within the union from engaging in illegal or unethical practices. McFetridge's modernization plan entailed the creation of a research department, the establishment of a legislative affairs department, the hiring of labor attorneys, and the publication of various SEIU periodicals, all of which resulted in the acquisition and dissemination of information that permitted the union to form alliances within and outside the labor movement, keep track of opposing forces, increase its understanding of local union concerns, and better position itself for negotiations.

A testament to his emerging stature within the labor movement, the federal government chose McFetridge as a consultant to an International Labor Organization conference in Switzerland in 1949 and, in 1950, he was elected to a seat on the AFL executive council. Needless to say, McFetridge's ascendancy benefited the union as a whole.

Under his presidency, McFetridge expanded organizing campaigns beyond the traditional building service workers and pursued members from service industries associated with airports, greenhouses, atomic plants, hospitals, bowling alleys, nurseries, cemeteries, nonacademic professions within schools, and many others. SEIU did not grow without great sacrifice during the McFetridge years. Like other unions, SEIU suffered from the ill-effects of the Taft-Hartley Act and many locals went out on strike for wages, working conditions, hours, and other

* At the time the records within this collection were created, this union was called the Building Service Employees International Union. In 1968, the union dropped the word, "Building" from its title. The name change reflected a changing membership, which included service employees not associated with buildings.

demands. And yet, during McFetridge's 20 year tenure as president ending in 1960, SEIU grew from 70,000 to 275,000.

Following his departure from the presidency of the International, McFetridge became the President of Chicago's Local 1. In this capacity, he waged a heated jurisdictional dispute with Local 4, which was led by McFetridge's one time International Secretary-Treasurer, George Fairchild, and came into conflict with the new SEIU President, David Sullivan, regarding a Chicago real estate project. McFetridge left the union shortly thereafter, as he had lost both fights and, as a result, fell into disfavor with the union's top leadership. The records comprising this collection chronicle McFetridge's last years as President of SEIU. Records reflecting the bulk of his first fifteen years are maintained on microfilm at the Archives of Labor and Urban Affairs. The Audio-Visual Department for the Archives retains a small amount of photos related to SEIU during this period, although most SEIU related photos and other audio visual material have been retained by the International. For more information on William McFetridge, please consult A Need for Valor: The roots of the Service Employees International Union, 1902-1992.

SERIES TWO: EXECUTIVE OFFICE OFFICER FILES, Boxes 15-16

The second series ("Executive Office Officer Files") is comprised of correspondence, activity reports, and newspaper clippings related to officers whose records are presently listed within this series. It should be noted that we retained the records of Gus Van Heck within this series even though he was an International Vice President during a previous period. Except for Van Heck, the individuals whose records comprise this series were Vice Presidents for at least the 1955-1960 period for which this collection generally represents. This series is arranged in alphabetical order according to the last name of the officer in question. This series, spanning from 1951-1962, is .75 linear feet.

SERIES THREE: EXECUTIVE OFFICE INTERNATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES AND ORGANIZERS FILES, Boxes 16-20

The third series (“International Representatives and Organizers”) is largely comprised of activity reports for SEIU's International Representatives and Organizers, although records of Milton Murray, the Director of Organizing, are also located within this series. The activity reports enumerate the day-to-day activities of representatives and organizers. Researchers should note that the daily entries within these reports rarely include details. The individuals whose records comprise this series were organizers or representatives for at least the 1955-1960. As organizers and representatives are affiliated with specific locals or operate within certain geographical regions, researchers will want to use the records within this series with some of those within other series containing information about particular locals, geographic regions, and individuals. Correspondence and other material is also included within this series, although not in a large amount. The geographic location designation reflects the location of either the representatives or organizers office or home and is largely intended to provide researchers with a sense of the general area in which the individual in question operated. This series is arranged alphabetically according to the last name of the organizer or representative in question. This series, spanning from 1951-1961, is 4 linear feet.

Index to Subjects and Correspondents

This index includes the names of people, organizations (mostly labor), and subjects deemed relevant at the time of processing. Entries of individuals preceded by an asterisk indicate that there exist records in those boxes and folders that are authored by the important historical figures that those entries represent. The titles of the correspondents refer to the 1955-1960 time period, although correspondents may have possessed these titles for earlier or later periods. All SEIU Vice Presidents are listed in this index; however, neither the names of the President nor of the Secretary-Treasurer are listed in this index as their names appear so frequently that to include them would not serve a useful purpose. The names of only selected SEIU representatives, organizers, and others are included in this index and only in instances when they ultimately became prominent SEIU officers or left SEIU to assume important positions elsewhere (e.g., Richard Cordtz and Tom Donahue). Abbreviations are used sparingly within the index. Examples include: AFL-CIO, UAW, and SEIU.
