Abstract:	The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was established in 1910 to help African-American citizens secure their rights, obtain legal justice and gain equal political, economic and social opportunity. The Detroit Branch was established in 1912 and has worked to improve conditions in housing, employment, education, and police-community relations and in doing so has received community-wide and national recognition. Their records reflect these accomplishments, including material on the Detroit race riot of 1943, scattered records concerning police brutality and discrimination in housing, employment, and education, civil rights complaints, membership campaigns, events and programming, and administrative materials.

History

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was established in 1910 to help African-American citizens secure their rights, obtain legal justice and gain equal political, economic and social opportunity.

The activities of the NAACP depend largely upon the organization of its 1,110 senior branches, which are established in most of the states and major cities. Each branch is chartered by a local community upon application to the Board of Directors of the national association and each enjoys a large degree of autonomy. It elects its own officers, holds regular and special meetings and has the right to carry out its own programs to improve local conditions. Its charter, however, may be revoked by the Board of Directors of the national association.

The Detroit Branch was established in 1912. In the 1920's it had a membership of only 2,000, but by 1943, its membership had increased to 25,000. Since 1952, except for two years, it has led all NAACP branches in total membership.

Since 1950, the Detroit branch has worked to improve conditions in housing, employment, education and police community relations. As a result of its success in the achievement of these goals, the Detroit Branch has received community wide and national recognition.

In recent decades the Detroit Branch has continued to focus on these important issues and also expanded programs and events for its members. Youth programming in particular has grown to include Afro-Academic, Cultural, Technological and Scientific Olympics (ACT-SO), back to school rallies, college tours, an art and essay contest, and Youth Fashions for Freedom events. The proceeds of the branch's annual Fight For Freedom Fund Dinner helps support youth focused programs. The Detroit Branch has also held events to support Black-owned and Detroit businesses, commemorative events for Martin Luther King's Detroit Freedom March of 1963, as well as many other events to support its members and community.
