History

Established as the Northwest Hebrew Congregation and Center in 1944, Adat Shalom congregation was created as a result of the need of the Jewish community in the Northwest section of Detroit for a place of worship. From its founding in a vacant store on Yom Kippur night in 1943, the congregation grew. Temporary quarters were used throughout 1944. In 1945, High Holy Day Services were conducted at the Bagley School with 400 people joining in prayer and Rabbi A. Millgram of the Jewish Theological Seminary officiating.

With the great increase in membership during the 1944-45 year and through the generosity of its congregants, the congregation began construction of the first section of its synagogue on Curtis Avenue in Detroit. Also in 1945, the congregation joined the United Synagogues of America, officially becoming part of the Conservative Movement of American Judaism. The Northwest Hebrew Congregation and Center lower wing was dedicated on December 14, 1947. The congregation changed its name to Adas Shalom in 1951, later becoming Adat Shalom. In the 1970s, the congregation moved to a new building in Farmington Hills, Michigan.
