Abstract:	Edna Noble White, a pioneer in family life education, served as first director of the Merrill-Palmer Institute from her appointment in 1920 until her retirement in 1947. Under Edna Noble White's leadership, the Institute expanded its services to include a student program of college level courses in child development, family life, parenting skills, and nursery education as well as the Merrill-Palmer Nursery School, Camps, Farm, Infant Services, and Recreational Clubs. Ms. White was also very active professionally on a national level and engaged with Detroit youth services agencies. The records of Edna Noble White contain personal and professional correspondence; minutes from various national, state, and local organizations as well as Merrill-Palmer committees; literature regarding child and parental education; research studies relating to child development, family relations, and immigrant acculturation; and correspondence and literature from a number of federal agencies concerned with child and family welfare.

History

Edna Noble White served as first director of the Merrill-Palmer Institute from her appointment in 1920 until her retirement in 1947. Born in Fairmount, Illinois in 1880, she taught at Danville High School after graduation from the University of Illinois. In 1908 she joined the faculty of the home economics department at Ohio State University, becoming head of the department in 1913. The Merrill-Palmer Institute was originally founded as the Merrill-Palmer School of Motherhood and Home Training to prepare young women as wives and mothers, but under Edna Noble White's leadership, it expanded its services to include a student program of college level courses in child development, family life, parenting skills, and nursery education as well as the Merrill-Palmer Nursery School, Camps, Farm, Infant Services, and Recreational Clubs. Edna Noble White, a pioneer in family life education, was a member and officer of numerous national professional associations, most prominently the American Association of University Women, Agricultural Missions Foundation, American Home Economics Association, and the New Education Fellowship. She participated in the activities of several Detroit youth services agencies and was instrumental in efforts to expand day care and nursery school services in Michigan during World War II. She also took part in several Works Progress Administration projects, such as the Emergency Nursery Schools project and the Emergency Education project. She died in 1954.
