Accession Number 1

The papers of President Clarence Beverly Hilberry were placed in the University Archives in eleven shipments from 1959 to 1967. They include Hilberry's files as President as well as some of his files as Dean of Administration.

Clarence B. Hilberry was named Acting President of Wayne University in September, 1952. He served as Wayne's fourth President from July 1, 1953 until his retirement on July 1, 1965. Wayne University, a municipal institution, became Wayne State University, a state institution, in April of 1956. Hilberry came to Wayne in 1930 as an instructor in the Department of English and, in 1939, became the head of the Department. He was appointed Dean of Administration of the University in 1945, serving in that position until his appointment to the presidency. Prior to coming to Detroit, he taught English at Albion College (1925-1927) and at the Y.M.C.A. College in Chicago (1927-1930).

After his 1965 retirement from Wayne, Hilberry accepted the position of educational consultant to the Ford Foundation in New York City. He died of a heart attack on January 10, 1966 at age 63. University memorials honoring President Clarence Beverly Hilberry for his leadership and dedication include the Hilberry Classic Theatre, the Hilberry Theatre (building), the "Law Window" in St. Andrews Hall, a sugar maple at the corner of Cass and Hancock, and the University Professorship renamed the Clarence Hilberry University Professor.

President Hilberry earned his bachelor's (1924) and master's (1925) degrees from Oberlin College. He received his doctorate degree (1930) from the University of Chicago with a major in English Literature. While President, Hilberry was awarded honorary degrees from Albion College, Michigan State University, Oberlin College, Cleary College, Hillsdale College, Detroit Institute of Technology, and Assumption University of Windsor.

Clarence Hilberry was active in many professional associations. He was President of the Association of Urban Universities and worked extensively with the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Because of his contributions, he was elected an honorary member of the North Central Association, an honor equivalent to an earned degree in education statesmanship. Hilberry also served on the boards of many local cultural and social agencies including Detroit Adventure, Cranbrook School, Economic Club of Detroit, and the United Foundation. For additional biographical information, see box 148, folders 1 and 2.

Remarks by Edward L. Cushman
Clarence Hilberry University Professor
Saturday, January 5, 1980
Memorial Service for Ruth H. Hilberry

I speak for the Wayne State University of the past, the Colleges of the City of Detroit which became Wayne University and in 1956 Wayne State University -- for the students, the faculty, and the staff who knew and loved Ruth Hilberry not only as the wife of Clarence B. Hilberry, but as herself.

As Leslie Hanawalt said in the official history of Wayne State University titled A Place of Light , “she made her own special kind of place in the University community.”

The years of Clarence Hilberry’s tenure as President were golden years in the history of Wayne State University. The student body increased from 16,000 to more than 25,000. Sixteen buildings which grace the campus were designed and erected to replace many of the old houses. These included the McGregor Memorial Conference Center, the College of Education, the G. Flint Purdy and Kresge Science Libraries, the Community Arts Building, and the Alumni House in which the Hilberrys had an apartment, the Prentis Building, Shapero Hall, the Physics Building, and the Law School was started. Even more importantly, the numbers and quality of faculty were sharply increased along with broadening the University’s educational services to students.

In 1956, Wayne University became Wayne State University through Public Act 183. In 1959, the people of Michigan voted to give Wayne State University the same constitutional status as The University of Michigan and Michigan State University.

In all of these developments Ruth Hilberry played a significant role. She was truly a partner with Clarence in their leadership of the University. She was not only a gracious First Lady of the University, she was a wife whose great interest in the University was a source of stimulation to her husband, to the faculty, and to the administration and she helped to motivate him and them. The Hillberrys brought a warmth of personal relationships to the University community which has been missed by those of us who knew them in the years of their active leadership.

I speak for the Wayne State University of the present, and the Wayne State University of the future in appreciation of the foundation that was laid under the leadership of Clarence and Ruth Hilberry. The legacy that the two of them left of concern for academic values, for the outreach of educational opportunity for all sorts and conditions of men and women, and for the community, is one that has been and will be cherished by this University.

I speak for myself as a long-time friend of Clarence and Ruth Hilberry and one who has been associated with this University since 1946. The two of them helped create a spirit which touched the lives of all who worked with them to help Wayne progress. In a very real sense, Ruth was the real conscience which challenged all to aspire to greater heights.

When I asked George Gullen, who is here in the audience today, to enable me to leave the administration so that I could spend full-time in the faculty, he and the Board of Governors were kind enough to name me the second University Professor in the history of the University. I was particularly pleased when President Gullen recommended to the Board that the University Professorship be named for Clarence Hilberry....

Contents

175 manuscript boxes
2 1/2 manuscripts boxes
1 flat box

Series I: Administration, 1937-1966; Boxes 1-18

Files relating to administrators, President's staff meetings, the Detroit Board of Education, Wayne State University Board of Governors, University budget and personnel. The personnel files mainly deal with academic personnel, issues, policies, and labor organizations.

Series subjects include: academic freedom, administrative salaries, communism, dismissal proceedings for two faculty members, presidential selection, state aid, state control, and Wayne's history and organization.

Additional material on subjects in Series I is found throughout the collection. Material on state control and state aid is located in Series V (Government and State Aid); on academic freedom, dismissal proceedings and communism in Series III (Councils and Committees) and Series VII (General Subjects and Correspondence); on or from faculty in Series VII.

Series II: Wayne Colleges, Schools, Divisions and Other Units, 1928, 1930, 1933-1966; Boxes 19-57

The series contains excellent material documenting, growth, development, policies, activities and organizational changes. It also provides excellent documentation on all aspects of student life, in particular from the late 1940s to mid 1950s. Files include material on social and political activities, discriminatory clauses in student organizations, and student discipline.

The series includes inter-college and University wide programs, special projects, and non-academic units. There is considerable material prior to 1950.

Series III: Councils and Committees, 1936-1964; Boxes 58-65

Material on the Council of Deans, Graduate Professional Council, President-Deans Conference, University Council, and mainly Wayne committees.

The University Council was the faculty governance body concerned with the formulation and review of educational policy affecting the University as a whole. It also recommend policies affecting faculty rights and responsibilities, faculty welfare, and the principles of academic freedom and tenure. The Council files include its Rights and Responsibilities Committee. The Committee was involved in the dismissal proceedings of Gerald Harrison and Irving Stein--- faculty members who took the Fifth Amendment during House Un-American Activities Committee investigations.

The "Committee" files cover a broad range of topics including academic calendar, admissions, athletics, civil defense, long range planning, and research.

Series IV: Campus Development, 1940-1964; Boxes 66-71

The series gives a good overview of campus planning and development, student housing needs, and information on specific buildings. It also reflects Wayne's continual struggle for space and the financial constraints which affected that struggle.

Series V: Government and State Aid, 1935-1965; Boxes 72-78

Correspondence, clippings, memos, reports, and financial data which mainly relate to federal, state and local government activities and legislation affecting higher education and Wayne. The series also documents the University's efforts to gain state aid and, ultimately, state control.

There is material on junior colleges; the Ruthven Study Commission which recommended that Wayne become a state institution; two important Michigan committees---the Legislative Study Committee on Higher Education (1956-1960) and the Citizen's Committee on Higher Education (1963-1965); and State and Science Halls and the Medical Science Building.

Series VI: Awards and Events, 1936, 1939-1964; Boxes 79-92

Mainly files on alumni awards, honorary degrees, commencement, honorary degree convocations and President Hilberry's inauguration. There are also files on University representation at various ceremonies and events.

Series VII: General Subjects and Correspondence, 1935-1965; Boxes 93-120

The series includes correspondence, clippings, memos, and reports. There is significant information on a variety of subjects including: "Cold War" issues of communism, outside speaker policy, individuals and student organizations identified with Communism, and academic freedom; the Collegian (student newspaper); community and junior colleges; discrimination; international students including Nisei; gifts and grants; Phi Beta Kappa; University policies; public relations; and research.

The "Correspondence" files cover many subjects from a broad range of constituents including faculty members, business and civic leaders, and the general public. Some letters request President Hilberry investigate faculty members for communistic tendencies,

Series VIII: Non-Wayne Colleges and Universities, 1935-1964; Boxes 121-124

Mainly correspondence between Wayne and other colleges and universities although there are some non-higher education institutions included. The files contain responses for information on Wayne's programs, departments, faculty governance, and policies as well as higher education issues. There also is information on cooperative institutional efforts and proposed programs.

Additional material on junior and community colleges is located in Series V (Government and State Aid) and Series VII (General Subjects and Correspondence).

Series IX: Associations and Organizations, 1933-1966; Boxes 125-147

The series reflects Wayne's relationships with civic, cultural, and higher education professional associations and organizations as well as foundations. It also provides policy and operational information for these organizations. Subjects in the series include: accreditation, athletics, American Association of University Women, Association of American Universities, Michigan Council of State College Presidents, North Central Association, psychiatric nursing, and the Southeastern Michigan Metropolitan Community Research Corporation.

The series is particularly important for its rich documentation of Wayne from the 1930s through the mid 1940s. There is some Executive Vice-President David D. Henry correspondence. Henry later became Wayne's first president in 1945. The foundation files illustrate Wayne's efforts during the same period to obtain funding for various programs including social science research in the Detroit area and Library of Congress cards for the library.

Additional material on associations and organizations is located in Series X (President Clarence Beverly Hilberry).

Series X: President Clarence Beverly Hilberry, 1947-1965; Boxes 148-177

Although there is some personal material, the series predominately reflects Hilberry's public role as President and University representative. There are awards, speeches, articles, correspondence files, and programs which Hilberry attended. The membership files illustrate Hilberry's leadership and dedicated work with professional, cultural, civic, and social organizations via his membership and/or service on their boards.

Series I
Administration, 1937-1966
Boxes 1-18

The series is divided into four subseries.

Subseries A: Administrators, 1937-1966; Boxes 1-4

Correspondence, memos, and biographical information relating to the University's executive officers and deans. Files may include appointment, responsibilities and/or matters pertaining to the administrator's position or college. Folders are arranged in alphabetical order and material within folders is filed chronologically.

President Hilberry and his executive officers met regularly. The meetings covered a broad spectrum of topics including particular programs, academic organization, community relationships, academic freedom, Communist speaker policy, students issues, and campus development. The "President's Staff" and "President's Staff Notes and Agendas" files document the meetings.

Subseries B: Detroit Board of Education and Wayne State University Board of Governors, 1951-1965; Boxes 5-7, Box 8 (folders 1-9)

The subseries is arranged, with several exceptions, in chronological order. Material within folders is also filed chronologically.

President Hilberry kept the boards informed of University matters via "Informal Notes," "Letters," and "Confidential Notes." Some were only informational. Others were background and recommendations needed by the boards for decision making. These communications, like the "President's Staff Notes" in Subseries A, cover a broad range of subjects including many of the subjects in the "Notes." Topics include: presidential selection, buildings, deanships, athletics, salaries, the campaign to become a state institution, and Wayne's history and organization. "Cold War" issues include: Communism, academic freedom, Communist speaker ban, and the dismissal of faculty members Gerald Harrison and Irving Stein. A list of contents for the Informal Notes to the Board of Education from March 16, 1953 to June 6, 1956 is in the appendix.

Subseries C: Budget 1946-1964; Box 8 (folders 10-19), Boxes 9, 10, Box 11 (folders 1-4)

Correspondence, reports, and financial data relating to the University budget. Reduction plans are well documented in the 1961 folders which include college presentations and interviews with deans and directors. The subseries is in chronological order.

Subseries D: Personnel, 1938-1964; Boxes 11 (folders 5-17),
Boxes 12-18

Correspondence, clippings, memos, and minutes mainly relating to academic personnel, issues, policies, and labor organizations. There is considerable information on the issue of academic freedom and the involvement of Wayne chapters of the American Association of University Professors and the Federation of Teachers. The files are arranged alphabetically. Material within files is in chronological order.

The personnel files are those of faculty members. They may deal with personnel issues but frequently include other subjects. The "Chase" file, for example, gives a history of women student activities up to the 1940s. Folder titles generally include the faculty member's department or occasionally the subject matter of the file. Some faculty were investigated for communism, spying, and homosexuality.

Additional material on subjects in Series I is found throughout the collection. Material on state control and state aid is located in Series V (Government and State Aid); on academic freedom, dismissal proceedings and communism in Series III (Councils and Committees) and Series VII (General Subjects and Correspondence); on or from faculty members in Series VII.

Series II
Wayne Colleges, Schools, Divisions and Other Units, 1928, 1930, 1933-1966
Boxes 19-57

The series is divided into two subseries.

Subseries A: Colleges, School and Divisions, 1930, 1934-1966; Boxes 19-34, Box 35 (folders 1-8)

Correspondence, memos, minutes, reports, clippings, and financial data relating to Wayne's academic colleges, schools, and divisions. The subseries contains excellent material documenting the growth, development, policies, activities and organizational changes of the University's departments, colleges and schools. There is considerable material prior to 1950 throughout the subseries

The following are well documented: School of Business Administration and its Businessmen's Advisory Committee; College of Engineering and the termination of the Aeronautical Engineering Department; Graduate School and Graduate Division and the reorganization as well as master's and doctoral degrees; the Department of Journalism in the College of Liberal Arts; School of Nursing. There is also some material relating to alleged discrimination in the School of Social Work's field work placement in 1957.

The School of Medicine is particularly well documented prior to 1950. It's admissions practices and standards are reflected in individual cases. There is one case in which an individual infers discrimination because the applicant was Jewish. The "admissions" files also demonstrate the pressure President Hilberry received from public officials and well known individuals to favorably recommend applicants or to investigate rejections.

The subseries is in alphabetical order by college, school or division and then alphabetical within each college, etc. All material within folders is in chronological order. Material on the School of Public Affairs and Social Work is located under the School of Social Work. College of Medicine material is found under School of Medicine. Subseries B should also be consulted for additional academic department and units.

Subseries B: Other Units, 1928, 1933-1966; Box 35 (folders 9-16) through Box 57

Records relating to non-academic divisions, units and offices as well as University wide programs. The subseries also includes academic departments and programs which had been transferred to several colleges or whose college affiliation was unclear. The files are in alphabetical order. Material within folders is filled chronologically.

The following are particularly well documented: athletics (especially 1936-1957), computer technology, Detroit Adventure, religion, the University's Schmidt Foundation Farm, and television.

The Student Personnel Division files provide excellent documentation on all aspects of student life, in particular from the late 1940s to mid 1950s. The files include material on scholarships and financial aid, student government, social and political activities, the University's efforts to eradicate discriminatory clauses in student organizations, and student discipline. The discipline cases represent academic issues as well as non-university activities. The Division files frequently reflect Wayne's "in loco parentis" policy as well as its desire to avoid controversy and adverse publicity. This view often extended to off campus student activities.

Wayne, for some time, considered student political activities as inappropriate in a higher education environment. University committees made policies for student organizations which governed outside speakers, program content and flyer and leaflet distribution. Nevertheless, political activities increased. The increase was fostered, in part, by 1.) the country's concern with the threat of Communism and subversive activities and organizations, and 2.) the resulting infringements upon academic freedom. The Communist speaker ban remained in effect until 1960.

Additional material on University regulations is located in Series III (Councils and Committees). For files on American Student Union, American Youth for Democracy, Collegian, discrimination, Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC), outside speaker policy, Lorraine Meisner, and other individuals, see Series VII (General Subjects and Correspondence).

Series III
Councils and Committees, 1936-1964
Boxes 58-65

The series includes correspondence, memos, minutes, reports and clippings. It begins with administrative and faculty councils arranged in alphabetical order. The Council of Deans became the President-Deans Conference in 1961. "Committee" files, also in alphabetical order, follow "Council" files.

The University Council was established in 1933 as the faculty governance body. The University's 1961 statutes recognized the Council: 1.) was the official and major channel of communication between the faculties and the Board of Governors on matters of educational policy affecting the University community; 2.) had authority and responsibility for the formulation and review of educational policy affecting the University as a whole; 3.) should recommend to the President and the Board policies affecting faculty rights and responsibilities, faculty welfare, and generally accepted principles of academic freedom and tenure. The University Council files reflect all of the above.

Within the University Council's files, there is an important report generated by its Promotion Committee. Its Rights and Responsibilities Committee was concerned with subversive activities and academic freedom. It was involved in the dismissal proceedings of Gerald Harrison and Irving Stein. The two faculty members took the Fifth Amendment during House Un-American Activities Committee investigations. The Rights and Responsibilities Committee worked under the rules of the Michigan Communist Control Act. The Act stated if a person "is called before a duly authorized governmental body inquiring into his/her communist background and declines to answer on grounds of self-incrimination, such denial constitutes prima facie evidence that such a person is a communist or a knowing member of a communist front organization."

"Committee" files follow "Council" files. Most are files of University committees. They cover a broad range of topics including academic calendar, admissions, athletics, civil defense, long range planning, and research.

Additional material on Communism, dismissal proceedings and academic freedom is located in Series I (Administration) and Series VII (General Subjects and Correspondence).

The series gives a good overview of campus planning and development, student housing needs, and information on specific buildings. It also reflects Wayne's continual struggle for space and the financial constraints which affected that struggle. A good example of this is found in "Nursing Building Plans" and "Cohn Building." Additional material on the Medical Science Building, Science Hall and State Hall is located in Series V (Government and State Aid).

The series begins with campus development files and continues with files in alphabetical order.

Series V
Government and State Aid, 1935-1965
Boxes 72-78

The series is divided into two subseries.

Subseries A: Government, 1935-1965; Boxes 72-76, Box 77 (folders 1-6)

Correspondence, memos, reports, and financial data mainly relating to governmental activities and legislation affecting higher education and Wayne. There is material on the Ruthven Study Commission (1955, 1956) which recommended that Wayne become a state institution. The University became Wayne State University in April of 1956. There is also information on two other important Michigan committees---the Legislative Study Committee on Higher Education (1956-1960) and the Citizen's Committee on Higher Education (1963-1965).

The subseries is divided into four sections: federal government, State of Michigan, Wayne County and the City of Detroit. The 1935-1958 "Legislation" folders in the federal government section have information on both federal and state legislation. They are followed by folders on federal legislation and then by state legislation folders. Extensive information on Wayne's long campaign to receive state aid and become a state institution is found in Subseries B.

Subseries B: State Aid, 1937-1951, 1954-1956; Box 77 (folders 7-24), Box 78

Wayne was a municipal university from 1933 to 1956. The Detroit Board of Education, in 1943, requested that the State provide funds for post-World War II campus buildings. The first allocation of capital funds to Wayne was made in 1946 in the amount of $2.7 million for State and Science Halls. For tuition, "residence" was made state-wide. Wayne received state aid for teaching veterans from 1945 to 1948 and "junior college" students from 1948 to 1956. In 1951, the State gave $3.5 million for the Medical Science Building.

Beginning in the 1940s Wayne based its case for state aid on the argument that it was making a major contribution in training people essential to Michigan's continued progress. It argued that "if Wayne did not exist to serve an area containing half of Michigan's population, the state would have to create such an institution."

The subseries contains correspondence, clippings, memos, reports, financial data, and legislation documenting the University's drive for state aid and ultimately state control. It begins with legislation and reports covering the entire period. The remainder is generally in chronological order. Additional material on state control and state aid is located in Subseries A and in Series I (Administration).

Series VI
Awards and Events, 1936, 1939-1964
Boxes 79-92

Series V is divided into two subseries.

Subseries A: Awards 1939, 1941-1964; Boxes 79-81, Box 82 (folders 1-13)

The subseries has some material on the University's Distinguished Service Award and its recipients but most relates to alumni awards and honorary degrees. The subseries is arranged in alphabetical order.

Subseries B: Events 1936, 1940-1964; Box 82 (folders 14, 15) - Box 92

Correspondence, memos, clippings, programs, financial material, and mailing lists relating to University events, such as honorary degree convocations, dedication of Wayne's historical marker, and Hilberry's inauguration as well as several non-University events. In the "Olympics" file, Frederick Matthaui expresses his frustration at Detroit's unsuccessful Olympics bid. There also are files on University representation at various ceremonies and events. "Event" folders are in alphabetical order followed by "Representation" folders in chronological order.

Series VII
General Subjects and Correspondence, 1935-1965
Boxes 93-120

The series includes correspondence, clippings, memos, and reports. There is significant information on a variety of subjects including: "Cold War" issues of Communism, outside speaker policy, individuals and student organizations identified with Communism, and academic freedom; the Collegian (student newspaper); community and junior colleges; discrimination; international students including Nisei; gifts and grants; Phi Beta Kappa; University policies; public relations; and research.

Excellent material is sometimes "buried" within files. There is, for example, information on 1943 cafeteria food restrictions due to World War II, and displaced Jewish scholars in "Wayne University; General", a 1950 discussion of academic freedom in "Wayne University; Publications", and the History of Wayne Project in "Wayne State University; History." The "Lists" files include University and non-University subjects such as committee memberships, award recipients, and boards of directors.

The "Correspondence" files deal with many subjects from a broad range of constituents. There is correspondence from: faculty members discussing departmental and/or college issues; individuals requesting investigation of a faculty member for Communistic tendencies; business and civic leaders offering advice on particular subjects; and the general public sending information, requesting information or calling President Hilberry's attention to a specific topic.

"General Subjects" files are arranged in alphabetical order followed by "Correspondence" files arranged in five separate "A-Z" sections. Some folder titles in "General Subjects" are followed by "(Communism)" to indicate the material relates to the subject of Communism. The label does not mean that organizations and individuals were Communist.

Additional material on Communism, faculty dismissal proceedings, and academic freedom is located in Series I (Administration) and Series III (Councils and Committees).

Non-Wayne Colleges and Universities, 1935-1964
Boxes 121-124

Mainly correspondence between Wayne and other colleges and universities although there are some non-higher education institutions included. The files contain responses for information on Wayne's programs, departments, faculty governance, and policies as well as higher education issues. There also is information on cooperative efforts and proposals including: University of Michigan instructors teaching Wayne courses in 1936, a proposed graduate program with Marygrove College in 1943, and a 1935 proposal to transfer Highland Park Junior College to Wayne University.

Additional material on the general subject of junior and community colleges is located in Series V (Government and State Aid) and Series VII (General Subjects and Correspondence).

Series IX
Associations and Organizations, 1933-1966
Boxes 125-147

Correspondence, clippings, newsletters, minutes, reports, financial data, brochures, and programs of civic, cultural, and higher education professional associations and organizations as well as foundations. The files reflect Wayne's relationships with the groups as well as providing policy and operational information on them.

The series is particularly important for its rich documentation of Wayne from the 1930s through the mid 1940s. In the 1933 North Central Association files, for example, the Association requires the consolidation of Wayne's early colleges into a university as a prerequisite for accreditation. The colleges merged and became a university in August of 1933 and was renamed Wayne University in 1934. The foundation files illustrate Wayne's efforts during the same period to obtain funding for various programs including social science research in the Detroit area and Library of Congress cards for the library.

There is some of David D. Henry's correspondence as Executive Vice-President. Henry later became Wayne's first president in 1945. In a 1938 letter to the Carnegie Corporation of New York, Henry described Wayne and its students saying,

"I feel that I should say that Wayne draws to a very large degree from the less privileged classes of the city and is doing, I believe, a good work in directing the thinking of the students from this class away from more radical and extreme points of view toward a sane outlook on the problems of present day social and political life. We are doing everything we can in this direction...."

Subjects in the series include: accreditation, athletics, American Association of University Women, Association of American Universities, Michigan Council of State College Presidents, North Central Association, School of Nursing (Kellogg Foundation), and the Southeastern Michigan Metropolitan Community Research Corporation. The series is arranged in alphabetical order. Additional material is located in Series X (President Clarence Beverly Hilberry).

Series X
Clarence Beverly Hilberry, 1947-1965
Boxes 148-177

The series is divided into four subseries. Although there is some personal material, the series predominately reflects Hilberry's public role as President and University representative.

Subseries A: Miscellaneous, Gifts and Awards, 1947-1965

The series includes biographical material, University Christmas cards and greetings chosen by Hilberry, complimentary letters, and his Thailand and Europe trips

Subseries B: Speeches and Articles, 1952-1965

The series begins with Hilberry's "Informal Notes to Faculties," which were written for the University publication, Inside Wayne. The articles discuss a wide range of issues affecting Wayne as well as information on policies and programs. The "Notes" are followed by addresses and speeches given to University audiences and non-Wayne organizations.

Subseries C: Memberships, 1953-1965

Correspondence, minutes, clippings, reports, and financial data for civic, cultural, social, and professional organizations. Hilberry served as the University's representative to most of the groups via his membership and/or service on boards. The files reflect his leadership and work. The subjects include accreditation, community relations, Michigan Industrial Ambassadors, and Phi Beta Kappa. The subseries begins with miscellaneous memberships, followed by organizations arranged in alphabetical order. Additional material on organizations is located in Series IX (Associations and Organizations).

Subseries D: Correspondence, 1947-1965

The subseries is comprised of two "A-Z" correspondence files. The first covers the period 1947 to 1965 but it is predominately 1956 to 1965. The correspondence is more personal but frequently includes University matters. The second file consists primarily of congratulatory letters which Hilberry sent to non-University constituents from 1952 to 1965.

Subseries E: Programs Attended, 1946-1965

Correspondence and programs relating to meetings (1946-1960), programs (1955-1965), luncheons (1959-1965), and student programs (1954-1965) which President Hilberry attended. The subseries ends with three folders of "programs pending 1953-1963" --- programs which President Hilberry and faculty members wanted held at Wayne or to have a Wayne presence at the program.
