History

As its name implies, Service Employees International Union (SEIU) Local 1 of Chicago, Illinois is SEIU's first local. Local 1 signed its initial agreement with the Chicago Real Estate Board in 1916, seven years before William Quesse officially founded SEIU in 1921 as a union of flat janitors. For much of its history, Local 1 focused its efforts on organizing and representing building employees, particularly janitors.

During its early years, Local 1's leadership often overlapped with SEIU's International leadership. Thus, when the International was impacted by corruption in the late 1930s, so too was Local 1. This changed after William McFetridge assumed the Local 1 presidency in 1937, and even more so after his election as SEIU International President in 1940. McFetridge strengthened Local 1, a trend that continued over the next 50 years, during which Local organized and remained strong as a property services-oriented local. Local 1 primarily represented janitors, but also represented other service employees, for example, window washers, who became part of the local due to a merger in the 1950s.

By the late 1980s, SEIU had numerous, small locals, and began consolidating them, a trend which became more popular in the 1990s to centralize resources and capabilities. Local 1 was particularly immersed in this, with seven locals amalgamated into Local 1 by the end of the 1990s including locals 11 (January 1, 1989), 106 (January 1, 1993; Local 4 previously merged into 106 on November 1, 1987), 25 (January 2, 1998; Local 372 merged into Local 25 on June 1, 1987), 34 (1992), 151 (1992), 45 (1990), and 208 (1996). These mergers expanded the Local 1's focus from primarily domestic and commercial janitorial work to include cemetery workers; dental technicians and specialists; and industrial, production, sales, and jewelry workers.

Local 1 has now grown far beyond its initial roots in Chicago, Illinois, and is organized by state: Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, and Wisconsin, although its headquarters remains in Chicago. While Local 1 still represents janitors as it did when it was founded, today it also represents food service workers, and security officers.

Scope and Content:

The SEIU Local 1 Records document the history of Local 1 as well as three locals that were directly amalgamated into Local 1 beginning in 1989 through 1998: Local 11, Local 106, and Local 25. Also included are materials from locals that merged into those locals prior to their mergers into Local 1, the most prominent of which is Local 4 (which merged into Local 106 in 1987). Although the records span from 1913-1999, the first 30 or so years of Local 1's history is scant. The majority of the material within the collection documents 1950-1989, covering the operations of these locals, particularly their contracts with various companies, correspondence, discussions during internal meetings, and photographs documenting a variety of events.

Specific records documenting the history of each local include governance materials such as correspondence, meeting minutes, constitutions and by-laws; agreements; subject files including leases, arbitrations, building surveys, mergers, and audits; communications and publications including form and quarterly letters sent to union members, flyers, and serials; historical documents such as clippings and local histories; and audiovisual materials, primarily encompassing photographs, negatives, and contact sheets, as well as several scrapbooks and an original charter.
